The voters of Colorado will be asked to pass judgment on a measure the object of which is to compel indolent, shiftless men to support their families. The plan was conceived by Judge Ben Workhouse Plan. B. Lindsey and it provides for the establishment of workhouses in counties of 20,000 or more population. Delinquent heads of families are to be put to labor in the workhouses and the proceeds of their work will be applied to the support of their wives and children.

In discussing the plan the Chicago Record-Herald expresses the opinion that it would be better to establish farm colonies than workhouses. The public farm colony has much to commend it. It has been tried in a few cities as a substitute for a workhouse and the results have been highly satisfactory. It has also been adopted with success at some of the State penal and charitable institutions. From the standpoint of the prisoner's health farm labor has distinct advantages. Prisoners as a rule take more kindly to outdoor work than to the daily task behind prison walls.

Judge Lindsey has devoted much thought to these questions and is known to be liberal in his dealings with delinquent humanity. It is safe to assume that his workhouse plan is not without merit and should the voters adopt it there will be nation-wide interest in its operation .- Courier-Journal.

The tube skirt, charged with cutting down cotton mill receipts, has nevertheless been a great friend of the silk stocking manufacturers and should not be disposed of, therefore, too curtly .-- Charleston Post.

It has been estimated that we spend $208,-000,000 a year for funerals in this country. If the conservation congress can devise any means of eliminating funerals the movement should secure strong backing, -- St. Paul Dispatch.

We think that Mr. Taft will be in danger, no matter how many delegates he gets, until the vote at the Chicago convention is finally registered, for the Colonel is an exceedingly resourceful man, and he wants his old job back. -Memphis Commercial Appeal.

MINERS' WELFARE CAUSE OF TAFT

Step Forward.

mental Coal Mine.

The saving of many lives annuallythe lives of miners throughout the United States-will be one of the splendid results that will follow the establishment of the bureau of mines, one of the great achievements in the interest of labor of the administration of President Taft.

The excessive and unnecessary loss of life in the mines of this country was one of the primary causes for the creation of this bureau. For years hundreds of miners were killed in mine disasters, and practically nothing was done to check the terrible loss of life.

Spurred on by President Taft, an act creating the bureau of mines was tive on July 1, 1910. John A. Holmes of the United States geological survey was appointed as the first director. Mr. Holmes was reputed and certified to be the best trained man for the place obtainable in the United States. The chief experimental station was established at Pittsburgh, where the investigations of the problems intrusted to the bureau have been prosecuted so successfully for nearly two years.

In the year 1907, the most disastrous of all years in the American coal mines, 3,125 miners lost their lives. This represented 4.86 of men killed for every 1,000 employed. In coal mines in Europe less than two miners are killed out of every 1,000 employed. As a result of the work conducted by the bureau of mines and the wise use of an appropriation of $150,000 made by congress, the death rate has been already reduced to practically one-half what it was in 1907.

One of the notable achievements of the bureau of mines was the demonstration of the fact that coal dust in a bituminous mine is more dangerous and deadly than gas. It had been the belief heretofore that gas or fire damp was the greatest menace to the miners, and little attention was given to the accumulation of coal dust. The bureau of mines proved to the satisfaction of the miners as well as opera-"Now, see here, he growled, "I want to know just tors that coal dust would explode and, unlike fire damp, carried no warning with it. The keeping of dusty mines of mines, was found to reduce materially the chances of explosion of coal

The number of deaths in the mines has been greatly reduced as a result of the testing of explosives under the direction of the bureau of mines. In the year 1908 the coal mines in the United States used 2,000,000 pounds of short flame explosives, and at present nearly seven times that quantity is being used with greater safety, due to the co-operation of the coal operators

The establishment of an experimental coal mine at Brucetown, Pa., twelve miles from Pittsburgh, is still increased another notable achievement of the bureau of mines. It places the United States in advance of other nations with respect to this research and experimental work in mines. Numerous tests are made at this experimental mine, from which many excellent results are disaster in Ohio one of the rescue corps of the bureau of mines arrived at the scene thirty-two hours after the disaster. Three men were rescued who had been given up as dead and allowed to remain in the mine. At another time one man was found alive among 150 dead, and today he is the sole survivor of that terrible catastrophe due to the splendid work of the rescue corps.

Before the bureau of mines was made possible by the interest of President Taft, which was followed by the necessary legislation for its establishment, there was no organized effort in saving the lives of entombed miners. Time and again men have sacrificed their lives in vain attempts to rescue their companions. This unnecessary sacrifice of life has been stopped by "People who set 'round waitin' for some- Discovery of Danger of Coal Dust Im- the co-operation of the state authorition of the fuel resources of the United States is also being made with a view of checking the waste and increasing the efficiency with which fuel is used. This latter phase of the work is a part of the practical conservation policy of the Taft administration.

"President Taft is the one man who stood between me and destruction at Washington. When efforts were being made to 'assassinate me' Taft proved my only protector. He stood by me, and I am grateful to him. I hope he will be re-elected president."
